Read the passage carefully and answer the following questions :

The present world is full of tensions economic, political, social and military. Most of the modern conflicts are due to maldistribution of the wealth and economic resources among the countries of the world. While the people of the affluent countries are living a luxurious life Millions of people in Asia-Africa and Latin America are dying of hunger and want. All these problems can be solved, if a world government is brought into existence which draws out a common developmental programme for all the countries of the world, so that war against hunger want and pestilence is started. It this way all human beings of the world will be ensured a decent standard of living irrespective of their caste, colour, creed sex or nationality. This international government can truly implement the charter of human rights by bringing hope, prosperity and peace in the life of mankind. Unless a world government is established in the near future to tackle the economic, social, cultural, military and political problems of the world, the crisis and tensions in the world will depend rather than come to an end :
